When You Buy a Hat.

One of the worst things that a hat can do is to be so tight that it presses on your head. It is pretty sure to produce a headache and quite as sure to make you feel irritable. Usually, if your head is of normal size a hat that fits too snugly can be altered simply in the milliner's workroom to fit you. It is quite as great an error. fit you. It is quite as great an error to buy a hat that is too large. Though this may not feel so uncomfortable, a hat that is too large never looks right and there is no way of making it look right.

So first comes fit, and then comes color. Unless you can afford to have a separate hat for every street frock in your wardrobe you must give the question of the color of the hat rather serious consideration. It is easier to select a hat to go well with your frocks and suits than to get the suits and frocks to go with the hat. Even if you have not actually secured your there has been, but the vamp is actually shorter nevertheless.

This summer high shoes have been almost forgotten. It is so exceptional to see a woman in high shoes that we almost stare at her when we see her. The rivalry between the American and the chances are that low shoes and the French type of shoe still conand the French type of shoe still continues—that is, you still see both simply defy weather conditions and types of shoe worn by well dressed wear pumps and slippers with silk women, though, of course, the French type of shoe is much more usual in the large cities—small consequents.

and frocks to go with the hat. Even if you have not actually secured your autumn wardrobe you should at least have in mind what colors you intend to use before selecting the hat.

Of course, the black hat is almost always a safe investment. It can be worn well with any color and is very generally becoming. It has a way of looking smart when a hat of the same shape and trimming in another color might look just the reverse.

Brown hats of the warmer hues, selected for many autumn hats this year, are also very generally becoming. It is a fact that a brown hat that fits closely—a small brown hat—is more generally becoming than a large brown hat. A brown hat combines well with navy blue, providing, of course, you have no vivid color combination in the suit February.
